Mission Statement- Hopewell Hi-Lites is a student created, student-run newspaper designed to give a voice to the Hopewell High School student body. The goal is to provide printed informative and entertaining material that add to the identity and pride of the school it serves. Hopewell Hi-Lites' staff pledges to report the truth and only the truth, while staying true to all ethical policies and values.

Principal, Diplomat, Priest?

BY: BRANDON EATON

Ever since he was young, Mr. Allison knew he wanted to teach. His early jobs as a camp counselor and lifeguard reflected that desire. With this in mind, he narrowed down to two career options, a priest or a job in the education field. He chose education and taught eighth grade science at Southside for ten years. On March 1, 1998, he began his career at Hopewell, then in 2000 he became an assistant principal.

What does being a principal involve? For most, what comes to mind is the repetitive, paper-pushing job of filling out forms and making hard decisions, but, for Mr. Allison of Hopewell High School, that's only the tip of the iceberg.

Paperwork is an unavoidable aspect of being a principal, but connecting with students and feeling the pulse of the school is also important. Mr. Allison can always be seen walking around and talking to students; he loves being involved with the student body.

However, he was still inspired to do more. Serving on the Board of Directors of the NASSP since 2010, he launched his campaign to become president-elect. The NASSP, or the National Association of Secondary School Principals, has three main goals. With 25,000 members, these goals are connecting and engaging principals through advocacy, researching and developing programs for principals, and providing student programs. Did you know that the NHS is provided for by the NASSP?

Mr. Allison campaigned hard and effectively for over a year. He added the personalized touch of sending handwritten cards to the state coordinators. After a year of very hard work, he was surprised and excited when they announced he would be the next president-elect in 2014. During the 2014-2015 school year, he will remain principal of Hopewell. Once his president-elect year is over, on July 1, 2015, he will become president of the NASSP for a year. Mr. Allison will travel to several states, the White House, and even other countries.

In this time of travel he will meet with as many state and educational leaders as he can to share his positive work. One of the many exciting things Mr. Allison looks forward to is meeting the Secretary of Education. During his traveling time, Mr. Allison anticipates that Mr. Rowe will step into the role as principal although the school board has not made any official announcements. Mr. Allison hopes to return and work for Hopewell after his presidency with the NASSP is over

Notes of Hope

BY: GILLIAN BELICH

At the sound of her alarm, stomach full of nerves, Hope woke up an hour earlier than usual for school. She was about to change the attitude of her peers. “I see how people do not see any good in the world, and after Franklin Regional, I wanted to lift people’s spirits.” This was not the first time that Hope considered the idea. “I thought of the idea a few years ago, but did not consider it until after Franklin Regional.”

“...I wanted to lift people’s spirits.”

Creating and actually putting this plan into action was not a quick task for Hope, although she did have assistance. “It took four hours to write out the notes.” Said Hope. “I got to school at 6:30, and it took a half hour with help to put them up.” Her assistants were Gillian and Ethan Carr. When asked what she wanted to accomplish through this project, Gillian stated. “We wanted to make everyone’s day, and we didn’t want what happened at Franklin Regional to happen here.”

Hope was surprised and disappointed at the reaction of some of the students. By the end of the day, a majority of the sticky notes were torn down from the lockers, and strewn throughout the hallways. Hope did not let this upset her. Hope had a theory as to why everyone had such a negative reaction, she said “They do not want to seem uncool; everyone wanted to act cool for their friends and see it as stupid.” One student anonymously stated “I thought that it was kind of strange and pointless, because if someone was thinking about committing suicide, it wouldn’t stop them. It was not personal.” “Kids threw papers all over the hall, which made the school trashy looking, It upset a lot of people because it caused people to make fun of people more,” said a senior.

Hope did not receive only negative response though. Many girls tweeted “Thanks for the notes Hope, really brightened my day!” or “Wow, the notes were so cute, thanks girl!” Hope found the quotes from Pinterest and other websites. She also thought of a few on her own and from her assistants on this project. A few students said that it made their day. “I thought that it was the best idea ever, I think that more people should have appreciated it, and they did not” sophomore Chey Sievers answered. Hope’s hard work really brought some positive attention and feedback. When asked his opinion, Junior Justin Marchionda said “I thought it was a nice thing for somebody to do, and go out of their way to take the time to put stuff on people’s lockers.”

Whether it was a positive or negative reaction, Hope accomplished exactly what she was aiming for. She wanted to put a smile on at least one person’s face. There is always a way to change someone’s attitude for the day, even if it was from a sticky note. Hope plans to continue to spread “Notes of Hope” throughout the school. After all, we are called Hopewell.

THE COLONEL OF COMEDY: DONALD SANDERS

BY: JUSTIN KRAUS

According to Senior Donald Sanders he is, "a flag waving patriotic nephew of my uncle Sam." Donald is a senior who is involved in the musical and played Monsieur D'Arque in this year's 'Beauty and the Beast' play. Donald said he "plans to go to Slippery Rock, do ROTC, direct commission into the army upon graduation, and take it from there."

"I'm going to be honest, I've pretty much spent my life chasing after girls. Usually, though not always, unsuccessfully." People who have met Donald know his sense of humor, "when your parents are as unfunny as mine, you have to be funny for the whole family."

If given the choice between a squid of octopus, "I'd want to be an octopus. I'd keep eating until I became the Kraken." As for living in a sub-par apartment or an awesome car, "I'd live in a 1975 Chrysler New Yorker with no passenger door."

When asked about his involvement with people from other schools, Donald stated "there are other schools?" As for his personal life, he says his favorite show is Trailer Park Boys, and he reads science fiction books.

In response to more morbid questions, Donald said he would want to bring gladiator fights back and use death row inmates and child molesters. He also said that if he had to be an infection to wipe out the human race, he would "definitely choose the zombie virus." If Donald had to lead an impoverished nation, he said it would be "Haiti. I'd then rename it to 'Super happy fun land where no one is starving.'"

Aside from the joking, Donald had some real rock solid advice to any other high school attendees, "Stop caring what your classmates think of you. It really doesn't matter. Do what you need for yourself."

You Know Hewitt Is

BY: KRISTEN SPEZIALETTI

Lacing up his Scandinavian boots and parading around a Viking banner, Senior Brandon Hewitt started off the 2013-2014 school year the right way. Aside from playing the Viking role, Brandon also was a member of the track and field team and student council.

Brandon, an Independence Township resident, is the second oldest child in a family of 5 children, growing up as an aspiring astronaut. He is currently employed at Barney's Bar and Grill, and sleeping is one of his favorite hobbies. In the fall, he will be attending Indiana University of Pennsylvania with a major in Criminology. He hopes to one day be involved with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. But, if he could, he would be a Wall Street stock broker. "I think it would be pretty cool to have a pet narwhal," Brandon said when asked about having a domesticated pet.

While being a dedicated student and worker, Brandon also has a daredevil side. Before he dies, he hopes to skydive, be possessed by a ghost, and get into a fight with Manny Pacquiao. Brandon is excited and optimistic about the upcoming chapter in his life. Hopewell has provided him a solid academic and social foundation on which he will expand his scholastic competence.

The Joyous, The Diva, The Zany: Alisha Zanath

BY: LAUREN ZAWATSKI

Beware Mariah Carey, a new diva has emerged from within the borders of Hopewell Township, and her name is Alisha Zanath. Ms. Zanath, a headstrong senior whose voice bears an astonishingly frank resemblance to Mimi's, will be heading out to her new Geneva College home in just a few short months. For those who have not had the privilege of knowing Alisha throughout her time at Hopewell High, there are a few pivotal facts that all should know.

The first is her undying love for canines. Alisha is a dog enthusiast, and unsurprisingly her favorite pup is her own German Shorthaired, Abby. Next, is her favorite book, The Art of Racing in the Rain, by Garth Stein. Additionally, she noted that the greatest influence in her life has been Thomas Jefferson, who easily is her favorite Founding Father. She also noted, "I am a master of Lego Harry Potter, and a big Eagles fan."

Often, Alisha enjoys bidding her time fishing, playing tennis, reading, playing with Abby, stirring up trouble with "the broods," and tetherball. Currently she does not have a precise portrait of her visibly successful future created quite yet, but Alisha does know that "it will involve helping and guiding others. I love to help people and make them laugh."

Throughout her time at Hopewell, Alisha has generated countless wonderful memories, but one stands out among the rest. This year, Alisha was granted the role of Madame de la Grand Bouche in Hopewell's musical production, Beauty and the Beast, and she has categorized the experience, along with the bonding time she spent with her cast mates, as the fondest memory from her high school years.

Alisha has consistently served as a beacon of happiness and enthusiasm that leads those around her to envy her exuberance. Although the masses have taken notice of her positive outlook on life, she herself is not always aware of the fact that happiness radiates out of her being like rays of sunlight. To the many that yearn to know her secret, she relays this simple message: "The joy that I have comes from my faith. Jesus just makes me happy."

Team Captains

Tennis Captain Moves On

BY: RACHEL KRIGER

She rallied her troops to plenty of victories, before her reign began. Liana Muia, captain of the Hopewell girls' tennis team, includes her years playing as her greatest memory of high school. Liana also includes tennis in her greatest achievements when she beat Sewickley Academy, arguably one of the toughest teams in the district. Muia also beat Sewickley's 1 singles player and she even placed 3rd at WPIALS.

However, Liana's greatest tennis honor was when she was elected captain. "I learned a lot about leadership and responsibility and didn't take being named captain lightly. I honestly tried to be a good role model for the girls and always being there for them when they needed." She says she will miss the closeness that the team shared. "We were honestly like a family and the friendships I've made with all of them is something I'll never forget."

Liana's biggest inspiration in her years has been the late coach, Andy Brunette. "He taught me so much both on and off the court, and I will forever be grateful for that. He will always be someone I look up to and strive to be like. He was always optimistic and was truly the heart of our team." Liana plans on playing tennis in college by joining adult leagues. As for her lasting words to her teammates, Liana says, "Always have fun and try your best! I promise that tennis will be one of the highlights of your high school career, so cherish every moment."

"We were honestly like a family.."

Hopewell Captain

BY: JUSTIN KRAUS

Hopewell Baseball has always been a successful program. Particularly, last year the team went to the WPIAL championship, while Dave Roppo waited for his time to shine underneath impeccable talent. "Pre-season I had high hopes for the team, making playoffs definitely." Said Roppo. "I learned a lot from ya boy Rycy and was ready to step up and play." Unfortunately, the Senior Captain who had limited playing time in his career due to the talent playing ahead of him would once again be hit with misfortune, when

Last Man Standing

BY: RACHEL KRIGER

“One is the loneliest number that you’ll ever do.” Some might just remember that as a simple lyric to a Three Dog Night song, but it is the current senior-situation on the boys’ volleyball team.

Adam Speers does not see it that way though. Not only does Adam embrace being the only senior on the team, but he, like the other members of the team, embraces the game. “It really isn’t weird,” says Adam.

Adam is in his first season on Hopewell’s volleyball team. He may not be the speaking captain but he believes that the team responds to what he has to say. Adam noted that the season could be going a bit better, “but we’ve been working hard and it’s starting to show.” He also said that Hopewell’s toughest match this year was against Ambridge and that the team has very good chemistry, on and off the court. “The bus rides have been the best part and the most memorable moment would have to be winning our first set against Seton LaSalle.”

Adam uses his experience to lead by example. “I try to bring a bit of level-headedness and encouragement to the team.” Adam also had the tough task of trying to juggle both volleyball and performing as the Beast in the school’s musical production of Beauty and the Beast, which was performed in late March. “It’s been pretty tough, but I’ve managed to balance it out pretty well.”

Adam plans on attending Geneva College in the fall but says if he plays volleyball, it will just be intramural. Lastly, Adam wanted to acknowledge his teammates saying, “My teammates, no matter if we win or lose, we always have to keep our heads held high, and learn from our mistakes.”

“I try to bring a bit of level-headedness and encouragement to the team.”

he sustained a “Bi-lateral stress fracture, meaning it is on both sides of my spine.”

“I couldn’t tell you how I got injured.”

Roppo said “It first started hurting during legion baseball last year, it hurt worse

“At this point, the focus has to be coming together. Team camaraderie is a huge part for any sport.”

and worse, and due to my stupidity, I wouldn’t go see a medical man (also known as a doctor).”

“My observations of the team are completely different now,” said Roppo. “I play the role of a coach, observing and keeping the team motivated. It’s a whole different perspective, it makes you appreciate the coaches. Know what I’m saying?”

Due to the inexperience of the team, underclassmen have had to step up to fill the void. One of the main players who has done this is sophomore shortstop Griffin Curry, who is replacing the injured captain. “I’ve had to teach him a lot—the plays, communication, unwritten rules of playing shortstop that I have learned over the years,” said Roppo. Curry isn’t the only underclassmen who has helped either “Timmy ‘Slabbo Jr.’ Sabo has shut guys down on the mound. Chase Morales has pitched a few innings for us. Peter Cottontail (Pete Kopar) and Juggs (Tony Sutey) have caught balls for pitchers in the bullpen.”

Due to the season not going as well as expected, focus for the team can be tough to maintain. “At this point, the focus has to be coming together. Team camaraderie is a huge part for any sport. “After a career halted by stars in front of him and an ill-timed injury, Dave Roppo is still thinking positive. “There is definitely not another program in the WPIAL that I would have rather played for. We have a ridiculous coaching staff--basically the staff of a college team.”

Cap is Back

BY: ANDREW BRUNETTE

Perhaps the number one movie of the year, Captain America: The Winter Soldier is a quality film that deserves four stars. It is thrilling, action packed, and some critics are saying it is “better than The Avengers.” Captain America 2 is full of surprises and plot twists, constantly keeping you at the edge of your seat. Going to see this movie is the most fun you will have at the movies this year.

Picking up after the events of The Avengers, Captain Steve Rogers is placed into this new world, and what seems like a new world order. He knows nothing else than being a soldier. Rogers is at service to his country, and is trying to find his footing in a different type of war. The film opens with Cap making a connection with a fellow soldier as they run laps around the mall in front of the Washington Monument. This seemingly small connection expands throughout the film because it provides Captain Rogers with a connection to the era; war is eternal and the two can relate even across the decades. Roger’s running mate’s name is Sam Wilson, who ends up fighting alongside him as Falcon.

The dialogue in this movie is great. A lot of the one-liners are pretty cliché, but the dialogue really brings out the emotion in the plot. Samuel L. Jackson plays Nick Fury in this movie, and I must say, he puts the most emotion into this movie with the lines he was given. The most important thing he said was “Don’t trust anyone.” This simple line will be sprinting through your mind as the movie goes on, because betrayal is a big factor in this film. Sometimes you might even have trouble figuring out who the real bad guy is. To tell the good guys from the bad, Captain America will point out, “If they’re shooting at you, they’re bad.”

The Winter Soldier proves to be a very interesting character as the film rolls on. He portrays a “ghost-like” character that has been the basis of some unanswered attacks for the past 50 years. He wears a mask along with aviators to cover his face, and builds up suspense as Captain Steve Rogers encounters him countless times. The Winter Soldier also doesn’t talk that much, which makes him more mysterious, until his true identity is revealed in the middle of the movie after a rigorous battle between him and Rogers. Everything about the Winter Soldier makes the conflict and plot of the story a heck of a lot more interesting.

Captain America 2 will be the movie that you will want to see over and over again. Joe Drewitz, a senior at Hopewell High School, said that this movie will “epically blow your mind.” It was so good that Joe told people he went to go see it a second time a week later. If you are planning to see “Avengers: Age Of Ultron”, or “Captain America 3”, then its highly recommended that you stay and watch the credits roll. There are two scenes, one in the middle of the credits pertaining to the next Avengers film, and one at the very end of the credits that connects slightly to the next Captain America. Do yourself a favor, and go see one of the greatest films that has been released in the Marvel universe.
